THE NATURAL CHOICE

the timber story

tulip wood

Lirodendron

tulipwood

Tulipwood is very strong for its weight and is ideal for laminated beams and structures. Its main uses include construction, furniture, interior joinery, kitchen cabinets, doors and panelling.

At James Latham, years of experience has taught us that just because Tulipwood is a low-cost hardwood product, it doesn't mean that you need to be less discerning with quality or aesthetics.

Tulipwood grows extensively on the US East coast, but we have narrowed down the best Tulipwood region to the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia. The Poplar trees here grow tall and proud and it is the most abundant species in the forest. The direct road and rail network to the port of Norfolk, Virginia keeps haulage and freight costs to a minimum.

Our suppliers

Our core stock Tulipwood comes from the Augusta Mill, where boards are not pulled for width, meaning that the average width in a random pack is second to none.

The product is clean and white with very little mineral stain or green heart. James Latham is also proud to be able to offer NFP prime Tulipwood directly from stock, again, sourced from the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

We can even offer a white, 25mm Tulipwood directly from stock, selected for colour, which is beautiful and white all round. James Latham is the only UK supplier who can offer this in lengths of up to 6m.

All eight of our timber depots hold extensive stocks of Tulipwood in random specification, 225mm and wider, plus pulled to width material. It is also available as FSC® certified on request.

Whether you need full loads, packs or selected orders, your local James Latham depot can help.

The mark of responsible forestry

sleek, modern clean lines

James Latham have spent many years working with key U.S suppliers and regularly send employees out to mills to learn more about the product and the journey of the wood from the forest to the UK. We are extremely proud of our recently introduced Timber Academy, which is a scheme designed to give young people with potential in our business the opportunity to work at a US sawmill for a short period of time.

Augusta Mill take exceptional care of the raw material throughout the process, including additional conditioning time in the kiln, to produce a Tulipwood of exceptional stability when compared to many others, and much loved by the kitchen manufacturing industry.

Tulipwood from the Augusta Mill is exclusive to James Latham in the UK and available directly from stock.

James Latham is committed to responsible environmental procurement and, as such, we recognise and employ the AHEC American Hardwood Environmental Profile (AHEP) when purchasing North American timber.
